FOREWORD

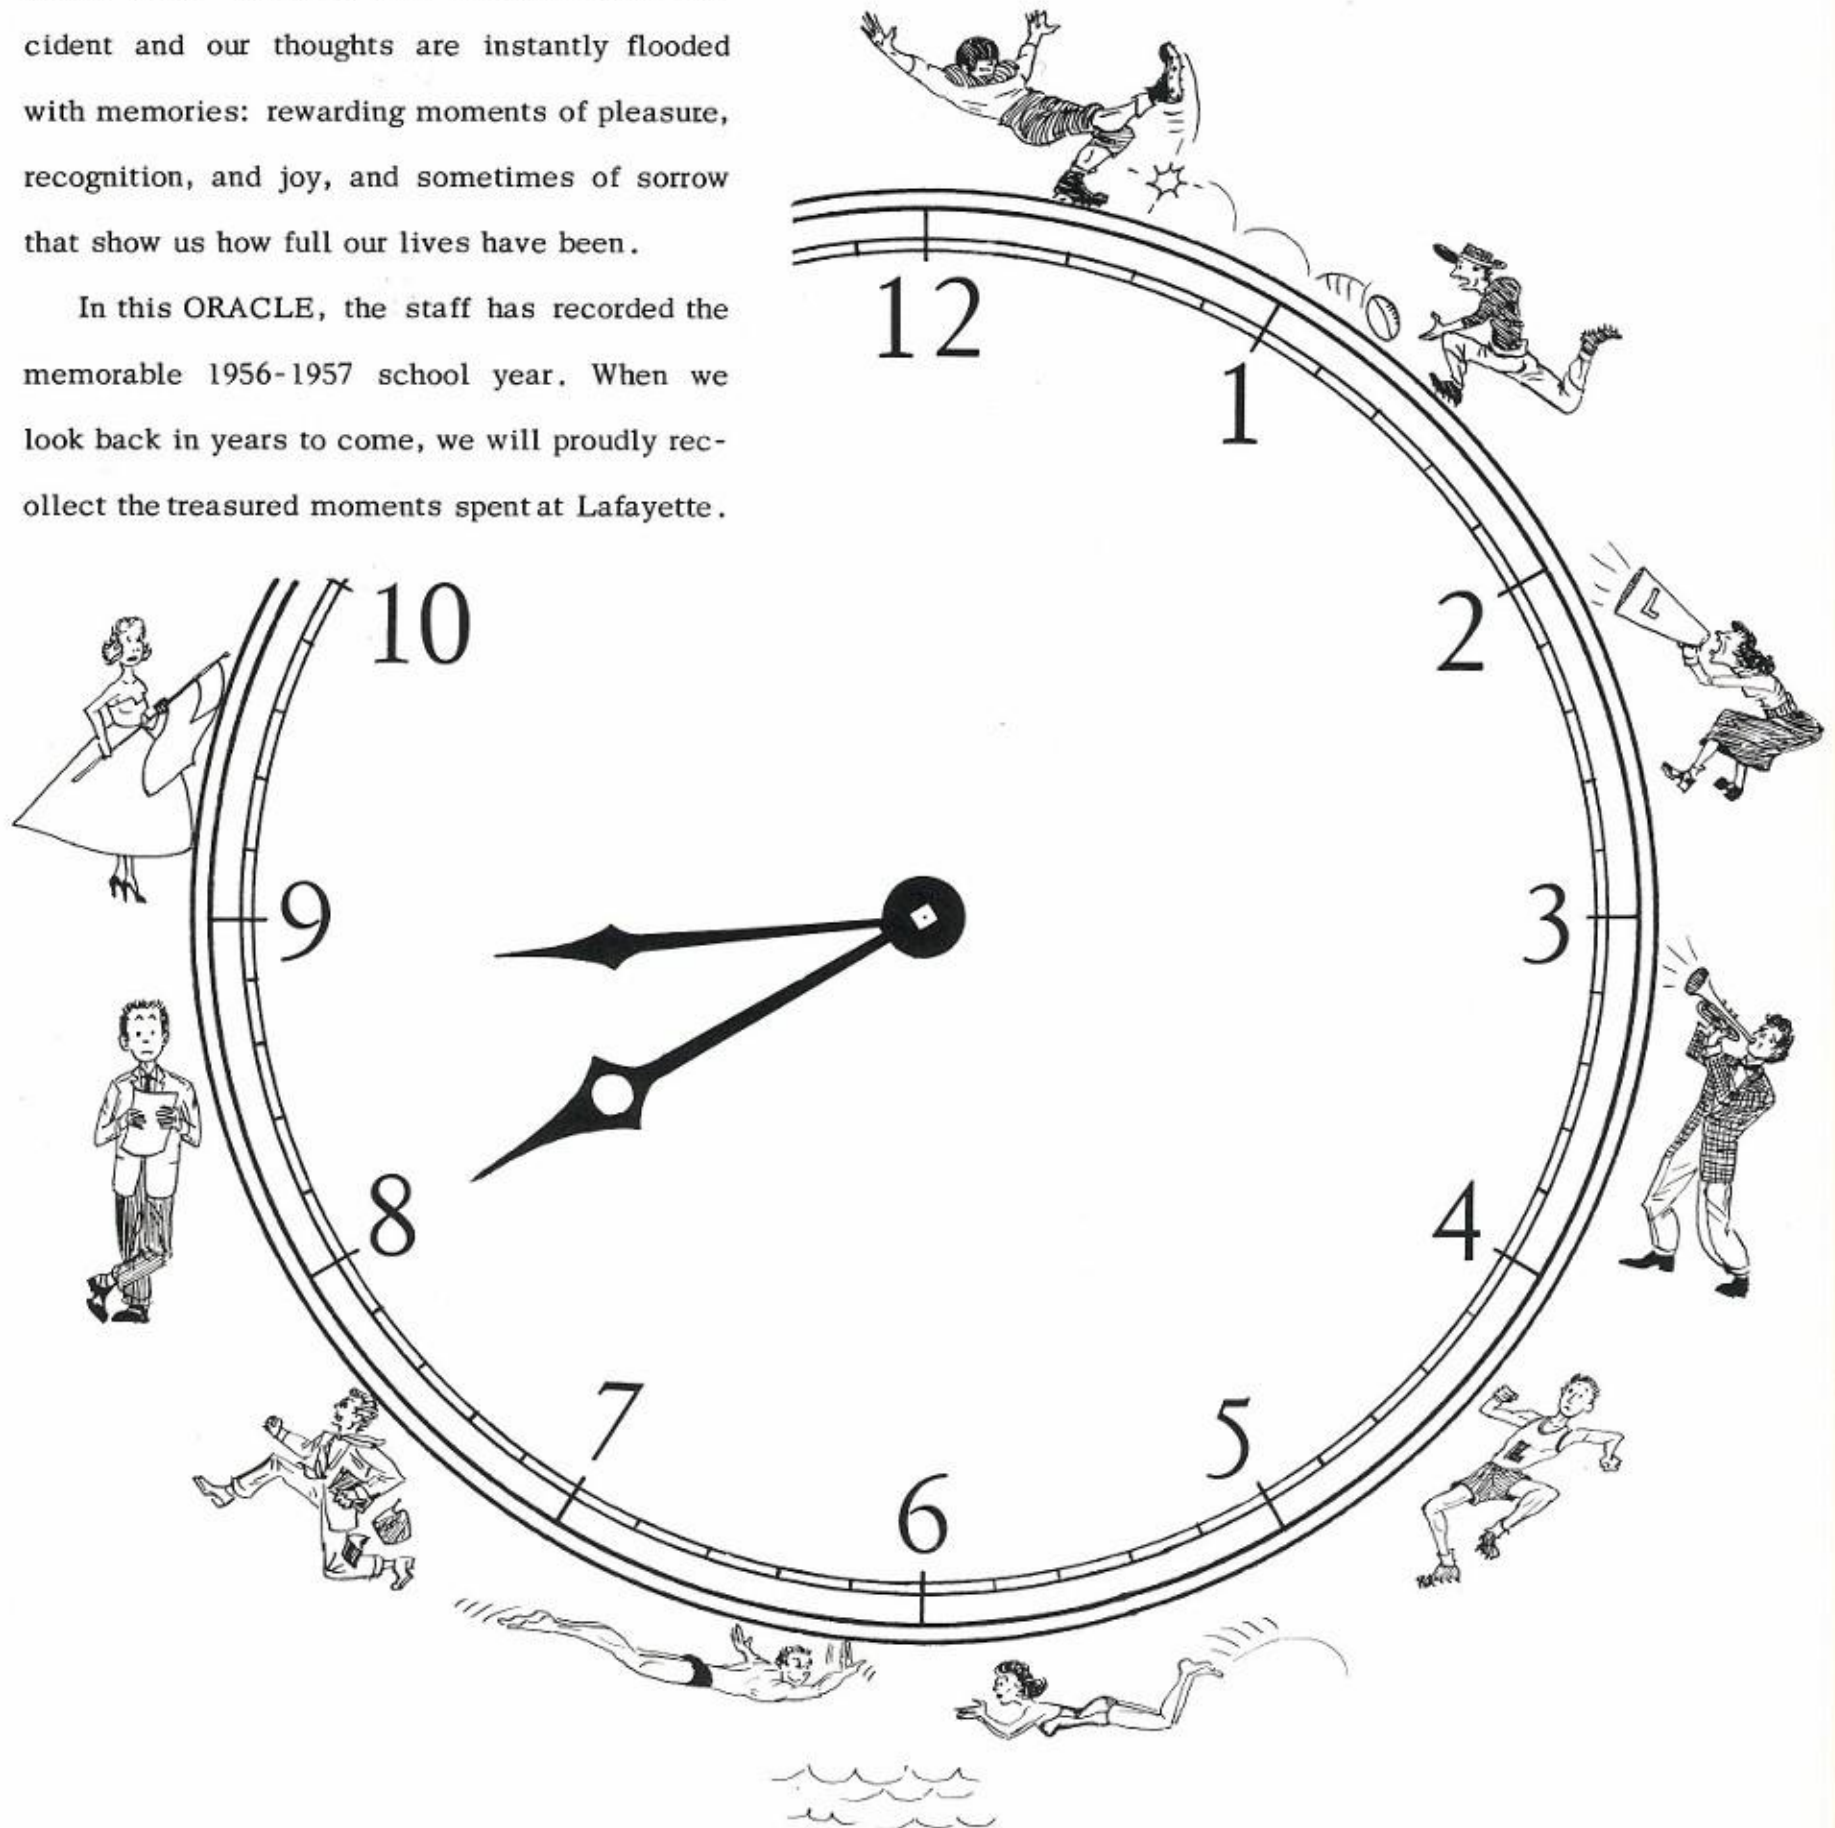

No one can

"look into the seeds of time

And say which grains will grow and which will not,"

but each of us has the power to remember events of the past. We have only to recall some incident and our thoughts are instantly flooded with memories: rewarding moments of pleasure, recognition, and joy, and sometimes of sorrow that show us how full our lives have been.

In this ORACLE, the staff has recorded the memorable 1956-1957 school year. When we look back in years to come, we will proudly recollect the treasured moments spent at Lafayette.

NEW AND OLD BRING

At a special moment in history, in 1903, Lafayette High School was opened. When the addition was built, it was, although new, a part of the older school. This is also true of the traditions which have been established during the past 54 years.

Each year new ideas were introduced to the school and over the years became cherished traditions. Our school year would be incomplete if the Boechat Post of the American Legion did not assist in our recognition of Veteran's Day and Memorial Day. The juniors and senior girls would be disappointed if they could not take part in their important programs. Already, a pep rally would not seem right without Dr. Hayes leading the songs.

The hallways of the school are old but people in them change; the building changes little in appearance, although the window frames are painted light gray and a small office is added. The new provides improvement for today. Furthermore, Lafayette is constantly trying new ideas to strengthen and protect her traditions.

This year many new ideas developed. The new Parent-Teachers' Association aroused a community interest in the welfare of Lafayette. This organization is dedicated to bringing extensive improvements to "the old plant." At the left is a picture of the officers, taken at the meeting, January 18. In the first row are Mrs. Joseph Palumbo, co vice president; Mrs. Gordon Gamble, secretary; Mrs. George W. Caylor, co second vice president; Mrs. Pat Gismondi, co president. In the second row are Mr. Joseph Palumbo, first vice president; Mr. Pat Gismondi, president; Mr. Frank Kolnacki, treasurer; Mr. George Caylor, second vice president; Mr. Abraham Axlerod, principal, third vice president. On March 3, they sponsored a Cinerama party.

Just before Christmas, seniors, who went to the auditorium to nominate class officers, were startled to find a golden curtain enhancing the stage. It was Lafayette's good fortune to acquire this curtain from the Erlanger theatre to replace the 50 year old tattered one. It became a familiar sight to see Mr. Axlerod presiding before this curtain.

The center hall, a meeting place always, is just the same except that it was more attractive this year. Miss Eleanor and Miss Margaret Dushane placed reproductions of beautiful paintings, lent by the Albright Art Gallery, on the wall between Rooms 111 and 112. Lawrence Sanchez, Lester Glassner and many others paused to admire this exhibit, which was changed every month.

A school is a living structure. Mr. Detmers marked Lafayette with his personality. Since then, Captain Mellen and Mr. Gott shaped it according to their ideas. Now Mr. Axlerod sets the clock and charts the course of the school according to his dreams for Lafayette.

A school is built by the students and teachers. The members of Lafayette have made the school rich by carrying on the traditions and incorporating new ideas, through many moments for more than half a century.

MOMENTS TO REMEMBER

The musical score is written in treble and bass clefs with a key signature of one sharp (F#). The melody is in the treble clef, and the bass line is in the bass clef. The lyrics are written below the melody.

PRINCIPAL

Mr. Axlerod, with his friendly attitude and eagerness to help the students of Lafayette, has shown his leadership through endless loyalty, honor, and service.

From the day you enter Lafayette High School until the night you receive your diploma, life is filled with moments to remember. For many persons the four year period in high school is the most memorable one of their lives - filled with so many successive moments worth remembering that it enriches their entire lives.

As you look back, you will remember moments of bewilderment and moments of sureness, moments of sadness and moments of great joy, moments of defeat and moments of victory, moments of anger and moments of undying love. You will remember all the experiences that are common to mankind; but because they happen to you at a time of great growth and change in your own life, they will seem somehow to be more real, more vital and more significant than at any other period of your life.

In this parting message I wish I could tell you that from here on your life will be one long period of pure joy and happiness. You know that life has its disappointments and its sorrows and when they come, I pray for you that you will have the moral fiber, the strength of character, and the deep and abiding faith in the great Creator of us all, to meet these crises in a normal and wholesome manner.

In the long and wonderful life still to unfold for all of you, may there be many, many moments of precious and enriching experiences to add to the moments to remember when you were a pupil at Lafayette High School.

Abraham Axlerod

DR. J. NORMAN HAYES

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

Dr. Hayes, through his energetic participation in school spirit, has exemplified our motto: Be strong and of a good courage.

When Shakespeare wrote "The evil that men do lives after them," he could never have been writing of memories. One of the happiest phenomena of adulthood is the fact that the outstanding memories in our lives are the pleasant ones, and no age of human existence seems to have been quite so replete with unfettered joy and freedom from aging responsibility as adolescence.

Somehow or other, the worry over the mathematics test is happily forgotten while the first prom registers indelibly in the mind, and all the tremendous trifles fade into the limbo of days beyond recall while the football games, the variety show, the cafeteria gab-fests, the "chance" meetings with the right person in the corridor, the first day at school as freshmen, the condescending sophistication of a sophomore, the junior program on Veterans' Day and of course, biggest of all, Graduation Day, are experiences which charitable Mother Nature will prompt you to remember always.

Yes, Lafayette has given you many moments to remember. But never forget that true happiness consists not in receiving but in giving. The happy moments you provide for others to remember will be the yardstick which will most accurately measure your worth. Never pride yourself with just coming fifty per cent of the way with your fellowmen. It's the person who comes sixty per cent of the way who makes life and living worthwhile; never be too big to think of the little things. Someone has said that it's the trifles that make perfection and perfection is no trifle. Be sincere, be kind, and be friendly and every day will be just a little brighter because you walked by.

J. Norman Hayes

Lafayette's faculty gave endless moments and hours of their time; early in the morning, during their free periods, and after school. Always ready to assist, they never ceased finding new methods to make a student's life in school more enjoyable. Not only did they instruct in the three R's but also taught the fundamentals of citizenship and fair play.

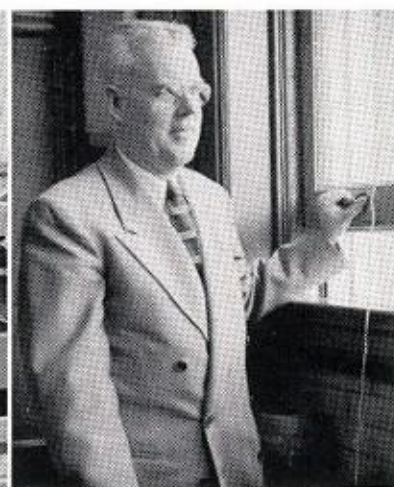

The school regretted the resignation of Miss Edith Rogers of the home economics department, who spent "quite a part of a lifetime at Lafayette."

Miss Rogers was proud to be a Lafayette graduate; she taught not only sewing but the fine traditions of the school. Lafayette will miss her generosity and her constant effort to make her alma mater the best possible school.

No one can completely fill the vacancy left by Miss Esther Link. As a teacher of English, she stimulated interest in many subjects, especially music, as she taught students to think for themselves and seek worthwhile information. Lafayette students and teachers missed her many kindnesses: tickets for concerts, an occasional dinner party, the flowers that she brought often, the time she gave to listen to problems.

We were sad too that Mr. Edward McNamara chose to go to South Park rather than to cross the city each day to instruct Lafayette students in commercial subjects. We enjoyed his quiet dignity, his calm way of getting the best from students, and his efficient conduct of the business staff of THE ORACLE.

This year we missed, also, Mr. Matthew Baranski, teacher of art and art adviser for THE ORACLE, who was transferred to East. We noticed the lack of a photography club and the colorful masks which decorated the walls of Room 103.

All were sorry that Mrs. Williams and Mr. Murphy were at Lafayette so short a time. Especially we missed Mrs. Williams' leadership of the music in assemblies. Mr. Murphy gained the admiration of the freshmen and the sophomores in his social science

Although those who have gone cannot be replaced, we are pleased to welcome the new teachers.

Mr. Mayer proved to be a valuable member of the faculty. His English classes benefited from his pleasant and effective teaching method. Students appreciated his willingness to coach the chess club.

Mr. Smith, a new addition to our citizenship education department, showed his willingness to help by coaching the debate team.

Mrs. Stonebraker's accommodating manner made her a welcome member in the home economics department. She demonstrated her willingness to work when she pressed the new assembly curtain and prepared several costumes and a toy bag for the Christmas assembly.

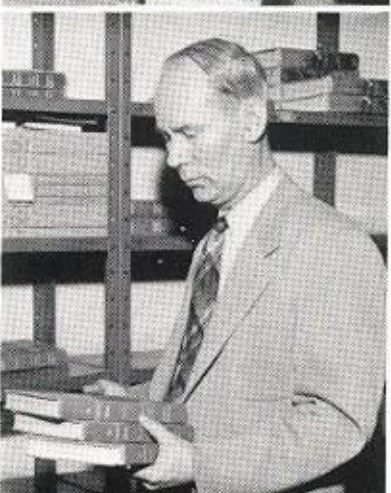

Honor came to Dr. Robert Rentz at the beginning of second semester. During the one and a half years he was boys' counselor at Lafayette, he endeared himself to many. He worked hard with the student council and promoted interesting extra curricular activities, in addition to guiding individual boys. Lafayette students and teachers wish him happiness and success as assistant principal of East High School.

Other changes came. Mrs. William McGavin, whom we knew as Mrs. Albright in the fall, and Mrs. Shantler, formerly Miss Pares, received the good wishes of all. All rejoiced at Miss Margaret Dushane's improvement following a serious illness.

All together the faculty worked to lead students toward pleasure in moments and hours of learning. PLEASANT MOMENTS PASS TO Looking back on our career at Lafayette, we recall nostalgically the many moments that added up to make years to remember.

Who can forget our freshman year? Most of us had dreadful assembly seats. Some of us were way on the side front, where we saw people in motion pictures with the strangest shapes. The fortunate, of Miss Stall's room, had full view seats near the camera. Especially to be remembered are the football rallies when we sang haltingly from pamphlets containing "The Stein Song," "Cheer," "Mr. Touchdown," etc. Also we fondly recollect singing lustily at our first victorious football game against McKinley. Lafayette welcomed Hutchinson-Central and Fosdick-Masten that fall in a "big three Thanksgiving assembly" which impressed us by lasting until 12 o'clock. The noise, directed by cheerleaders from Lafayette, Hutch, and Masten, was ear splitting.

In December the dramatics class presented Dickens' A CHRISTMAS CAROL, in which Bill Dugan portrayed the ghost of Marley, complete with black robe and clinking chains. Vonnell Wagner and Ellen Kilian, who sang "To Each His Own," added to the music and glamour of Lafayette's variety show entitled OVER THE RAINBOW.

In the spring Gale Bertiaux was thrilled by an invitation from John Schnabel for the 1954 prom. Probably because everyone had a study period and a half a day, freshmen survived the year, even with 8 periods a day and lunch about 10:30 on Monday.

When we returned in September 1954, we were amazed to find ourselves with 6 hours crammed with classes, no study period, and a shiny new lunchroom just for girls. Sometimes unknowing substitutes mistook the bells of the overlapping lunch arrangement so that we were treated to an hour and a half for eating.

It was quite a year. One of our sophomores, Bill Dugan, hobnobbed with his senior superiors when he played Baptista in THE TAMING OF THE SHREW. Cynthia Lawson, Gertie Genco, Karin Kolz, Pat Meredith, Dawn Smith, Nancy MacLeod, Gail Bertiaux, Camille Wing helped take TWO GIRLS NORTH to the Veterans' Hospital following a successful performance on February 21. In the spring the Yale Cup came to Lafayette, to thrill both faculty and students. In May a shock came when Mr. Gott announced his retirement. Mr. Kelly skillfully kept the farewell assembly on a light tone as Garth Schulz read the sophomore tribute and everyone was breathless as Mr. Gott opened his gifts, a camera and projector.

As juniors we wondered what the new principal would be like. We regretted Mr. Kelly's transfer but were encouraged by Dr. Hayes' smile. When Mr. Axelrod and Dr. Hayes accepted our traditions, we happily accepted them.

Juniors were proud that classmates Marie Mogavero, Claudia DiSalvo, Carol Tomaselli, and John Alongi survived competition to become cheerleaders. Before the Riverside game, juniors treated the assembly to skits, showing girls mimicking football players in action and a gab session rehashing the game. Claudia and Nancy MacLeod directed.

Presently two delegates from each junior room met to nominate their favorites for class officers. The school was covered with signs, urging us to "Get on the ball and vote for Paul" and "Say! Hey! Vote for Rae for Secretary." We chose president Paul Caito; vice president, Nancy MacLeod; secretary, Rachel Sacco; treasurer, Bob Doldan; girls' marshal, Geraldine Coppola; boys' marshal, Richard LoGalbo. They made their first united appearance at our Junior Veterans' Day Program.

Excitement mounted the afternoon of December 21 during the Christmas musical. We lived through examinations, Mardi Gras, the St. Patrick's Program, MELODIES AND MOODS, and a second Junior Day. Martha MacLeod, in kilts, performed the sword dance. As a radio dial was spun, we laughed with Gloria Crawford about the three bears and stretched with Janet Snyder's exercises. Lester Glassner presided.

We were the first to order class rings at the end of the third year. We passed American history I, English III, and health to become seniors.

A minimum of 12 units was necessary for a place in the senior room. Many had 15 units; others surpassed that for Rosalie Pellitieri and Paul Richter had 17 units and John Alongi, Lester Glassner, Gloria Marshall, Barbara DeMarco had 16 1/2 amassed in three years.

We as seniors, of course, led others by dressing appropriately, encouraging the sports players, taking leading parts in programs, choosing king and queen for Sweetheart Swing, selling tickets, and achieving high grades. And so the year passed. Anyone who cares to see the full extent of recent senior activities should refer to the 1957 LAFAYETTE ORACLE YEARBOOK, especially pages 20-39 and 56-92.

Through great effort juniors, sophomores, and freshmen will ultimately claim them.

T. Vallone, D. Hager, E. Buseck, and G. Moon are becoming very handy while learning to provide for their future homes.

R. Langenbach and C. Keuker, Future Scientists of America, are seen discussing a display at the Chevrolet Plant.

J. Peplinski, C. Keuker and C. Hammond proudly display their prizes of a radio and two watches won in selling tickets for the pop concert, December 7. Miss Howell's homeroom, 112, led the school.

WORKING AND PLAYING

ROOM 111: D. Flessa, R. Cameron, R. Carlisi, A. Barnes, F. D'Arrigo, T. Grimes.

The senior class buzzed for days before the basketball game between senior boys' homerooms, 111 and 112. Most of the students had decided for which room they would root when they entered the gym but both teams looked equal. At first 111 went out in front 10-4, but 112 rallied and the game continued neck in neck until 112 finally swept away to win 41-38.

Dr. John Enright is about to plunge the needle into F. Wertman, P. Caito, next in line, isn't disturbed. 338 students received the Salk vaccine in 50 minutes on February 7, more than one every second.

B. Harding, A. Palamuso, A. Mastrorilli, and E. LaMarco have fun painting a jukebox for a soda bar scene in the senior rally skit before the Grover football game.

N. MacLeod, D. Smith, M. Mogavero, S. Lyons, and K. Kolz, among the 110 seniors who had the small pox vaccination, can still smile.

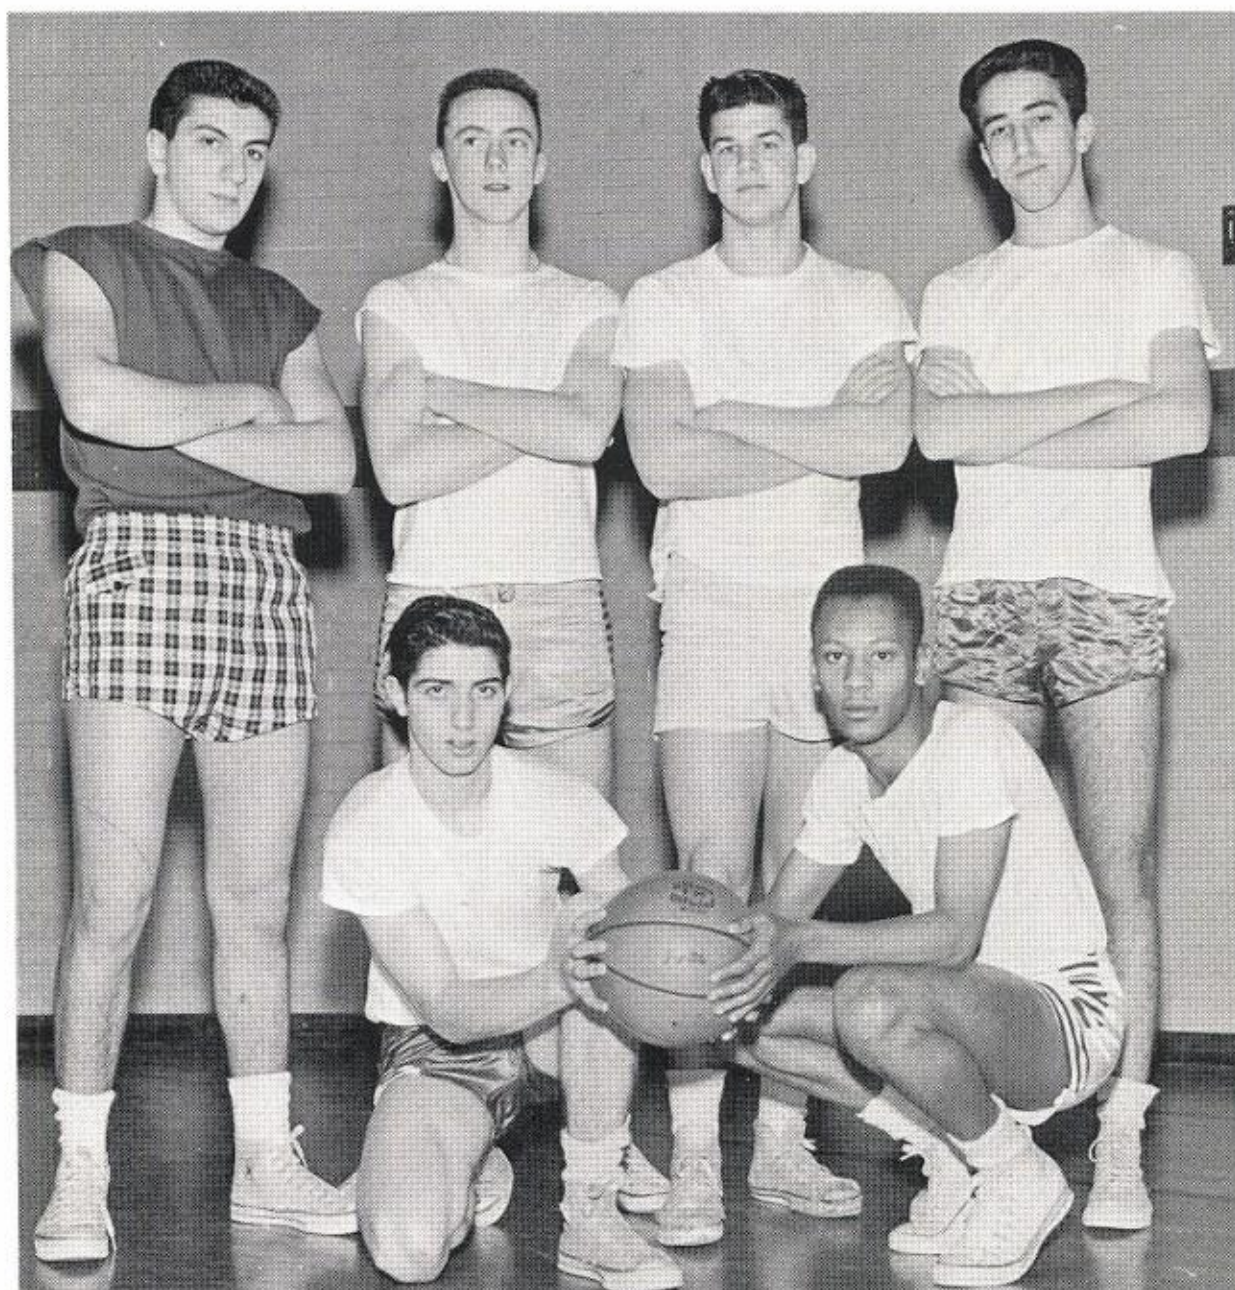

Sixth hour every day D. Hergert and J. Peplinski sat in center hall, studying and checking student permits.

Two alumni, Joe Tontillo and Joe Merlo, refereed. The co captains for 111 were Alonzo and Don; for 112, Jerry and Bill. Alonzo was top scorer for 111 with 25 points while Jerry and Bill led 112 with 12 points apiece. Miss Merle wished her boys had "given Alonzo the ball more often because he could just put it right in."

Miss Hertkorn saved the students $1690. She arranged for them to receive polio vaccine in school. Here a nurse dabs alcohol on K. Kolz's arm while T. Mallory waits patiently, listening to soothing background music.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Sue Saunderson and Daryl Dobrindt clean up after the junior pep rally.

Almost every Friday the pep rallies for football games and cross country meets were sponsored in turn by freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Great laughter greeted the skits. The cheering started out regularly with a slow, peppy "yeeay" but the sound increased as the morning progressed. All ended with the Alma Mater sung with true school spirit.

HALF 'ROUND THE SUN

Approximately 1,793,700 seconds out of 15,768,000 seconds that the earth took to go halfway 'round the sun in 1956-1957, students at Lafayette spent in school. To be sure they spent only 1,293,180 seconds in classes, because they wasted 118,320 seconds going through the corridors, enjoyed 205,200 seconds of entertainment in the auditorium, and ate their way through 177,000 seconds. During this time they worried and fretted and planned and were disappointed and complied and enjoyed themselves.

SEPTEMBER 5 8:00 A.M. Alice, Ann, Carol, Sally scurried into the Baynes Street entrance, tripped down the stairs, and ran to get lockers right near the mirror. It was a good thing they got there when they did because they just managed to get enough lockers for themselves and some close friends. In went mirrors, compacts, and hand cream, items definitely essential to any girl's well-furnished locker.

SEPTEMBER 5 9:30 A.M. The entire assembly was buzzing. The reason? Henceforth every boy would be required to wear a tie to school. Immediately following the assembly groups gathered for the big discussion. "Is it fair?" "It's extra work for our mothers." "Do they have to iron the shirts?" Then one loud cry was heard above the din. "It's unconstitutional!" The following day the policy was in action; almost fifty boys were sent home for ties. Realizing resistance was futile, the male student body submitted. The beaten feeling gradually grew into a feeling of pride as the entire school noticed the improvement in appearance. Only occasionally does someone have to avail himself of one of Dr. Hayes' extraordinary cravats, really a tie that blinds.

SEPTEMBER 12 8:45 A.M. The shock came. Lockers were assigned to every homeroom.

OCTOBER 19 2:30 P.M. Alas! When Mary totaled her marks after circulating her card, they averaged only 89.9%. "Better luck next time," she thought to herself as she strove to get a 99.9% average and lead the school honor roll.

OCTOBER 31 Lafayette's first Student Council dance came on Hallowe'en. At 3 P.M. all in line received a doughnut and a glass of cider free. When Daryl, Susie, Frank and Jerry took part in the traditional apple dunking, they all got wet and Jerry won a bracelet.

NOVEMBER 10 11:30 A.M. Jo Ann, Mary, Carol, Alice and Diane arrived at All High Stadium for Lafayette's last football game. Only a half dozen kids were in the stands. During the first quarter they found the good old Lafayette loyalty wasn't going to let the players down for more and more students arrived. One pair of gloves was passed around to keep many hands warm; the cheerleaders jumped up and down continually. Everyone kept clapping his hands but not for applause. The ladies' room was extra crowded around the radiator; shoes were lying around and feet were thawing out. It was good to go home to tell of a game won.

NOVEMBER 17 3:15 P.M. The gym was decorated. The band was in tune. The school was alerted and ready. Let the Turkey Hop begin. Between dancing, drinking coke, and the usual gossiping, everyone had a good time.

DECEMBER 20 Whether they put their money into a box, an envelope, or a tin can, all were generous. Students contributed $253.76 for the charity collection. Sophomores of room 315 led the list.

DECEMBER 21 A feeling of relaxation surged through the school for this was a day when no one worked. At 8:55 the auditorium filled with students eager to see one of the longest and best programs of the year, as parts of CAROLS AND CAPERS were repeated. Grace Prime's "O Holy Night" was sensational. Everyone was fascinated as Sally Concardi danced. Then came lunch and three ten minute classes made up of singers and talkers. At 2 o'clock the bell rang for the beginning of the hectic time of homeroom parties. There was food galore, although the thirsty people of Room 212, who forgot to order pop, swamped Room 114 and begged, borrowed, and bought drinks from their more foresighted compeers. Records played; people danced and sang. By unanimous vote this was the way school should be conducted.

As these events fell into the past, new ones were happening, leaving no dull moments for the classes of 1958, 1959, 1960.

JUNIOR OFFICERS Robert Dugan (treasurer), Mary MacLeod (marshal), Daniel Brooks (marshal)

The school went automatic, October 17, when the Fruit O'Matic machine was installed in center hall. Raymond Morse, Martha Koch, Vilja Ubner, Kathleen Abrams, Joseph Serio seemingly arrived when the machine was filled with 108 juicy red macintosh and delicious apples and pears. Only occasionally did someone put in a dime only to find there was no fruit. No one had long to wait, however, 'cause the "filler upper" man came three or four times a week.

FRESHMAN OFFICERS Patricia LaMarca (vice president), Frank LoTempio (president), Sandra Yates (secretary), Del Reeves (treasurer)

THEY WILL BRING MOMENTS OF HONOR

The junior class was shown in one of its finest moments on November 9. In conjunction with the John A. Boechat Post, the juniors conducted the Veterans' Day assembly. The first part held in the auditorium was highlighted by addresses and vocal solos. Tom Gamble presided. The second part was held at the Memorial Stone at Colonial Circle. Kirby Snyder spoke before Rose Tirone and Daryl Do-brindt placed wreaths. An everlasting moment was created when taps sounded through the crisp autumn air.

THE FUTURE IS IN JUNIOR HANDS

For two successive days speculation ran high among the juniors as they wondered which six people from some sixty nominees or one fourth of the class would be elected as junior officers. Considerable noise drifted through the doors of Mellen Memorial Auditorium during the process of election. The place vibrated with excitement. Anne and Ernestine were especially wise in their nominations because Kirby and Jo Ann were chosen to lead the class.

21,900 SECONDS

Contrary to popular belief most teenagers spend their time in school studying. Whether the student is Freddie Freshman, Susie Sophomore, Janie Junior, or Stevie Senior he uses the 6 hours and 5 minutes, the 21,900 seconds, of a Lafayette High School day to follow a regular schedule.

In roll call at 8:40 Stevie may make out one of innumerable cards, do last minute homework, listen to notices from organizations, contribute money for one cause or another or receive a summons from Mr. Hayes. So do Bill Dugan, Dennis Hergert, Ed Constantino and others in Room 111.

I HOUR

Regular	Mondays	Assembly Days
8:57-9:47	8:56-9:36	9:57-10:37

Then each student sets forth for a regular day of work. Perhaps first hour Stevie's English class meets in the library to work with reference books. In company with Charles Arnold, Frank D'Arrigo, Paul Caito, Carol Northrup, Elizabeth Belcher and others he struggles to unearth information about Ben Jonson.

II HOUR

Regular	Mondays	Assembly Days
9:51-10:41	9:40-10:20	10:41-11:21

Second hour may be the time for Janie's science class. She is taking physics to add another unit toward the three required for a science diploma. She and Tom Gamble, Dan Hochvert, Dan Brooks are involved in determining the advantage of mechanical pulleys and recording their findings in the lab experiment book.

III HOUR

Regular	Mondays	Assembly Days
10:45-11:35	10:24-11:04	11:25-12:05

Next Janie may slip in behind a typewriter. As she types the home keys asdf ;lkj asdf ;lkj over and over and over, she wonders if she will ever be as good a typist as Cora Mellott, Sharon Frandsen, Rosemary Annibale, and Joan Devine.

MAKE A BUSY DAY

IV HOUR	Regular	Mondays	Assembly Days
	11:39-12:29	11:08-11:48	12:09-12:49
LUNCH	12:29-12:57	11:48-12:16	12:49- 1:17

At the beginning of 4th hour, Susie Sophomore may go to art class while half the school rushes to lunch. In general art she and Sam Pannell, Edward Foglia, Pete Bradley, John Menneci, and others struggle with spacing in lettering. They find pleasure mixing colors. To be sure in seeking brown they stir and stir and end up with purple, orange, green, and cerise. But eventually they achieve the result they want.

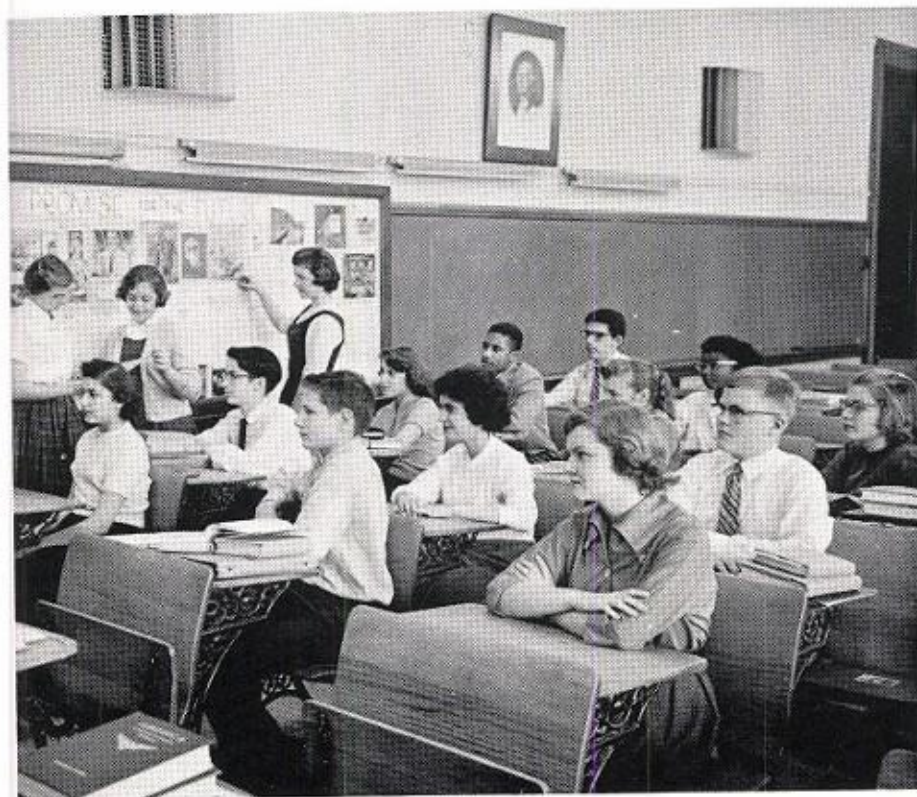

Finally the sufferers of the second lunch hour get their chance. They have previously packed up their books and hopefully brought their lunches from their lockers. At last they are released to the cafeteria. Those who get there quickly head the line and have time to eat; others spend most of the 27 minute lunch hour waiting in line.

V HOUR	Regular	Mondays	Assembly Days
	1:01-1:51	12:20-1:00	1:21-2:01

Fifth hour, Freddie Freshman attends his economic world class. The Promise for the Future bulletin board exhibits honor papers including those of Hester Krusen, Linda Alfieri, Kathleen Barker, Sandra Yates, and Leonard Hill; and above various vocations that interest the freshmen.

VI HOUR	Regular	Mondays	Assembly Days
	1:55-2:45	1:04-1:45	2:05-2:45

If Freddie, Susie or Janie is lucky, he has a study period a week and hopes fervently that like Stevie Senior he may sometime have one a day. Some people in Room 110 just study: Nancy Crane, Judith Oswald, Camille Wing, Virginia Valentino. Others depart to visit a guidance counsellor; cough and cough and go for a drink; have trouble finding a word in the unabridged dictionary; grind up their pencils on the noisy pencil sharpener; and even try to sleep. 99% cease working at 2:42; the bell rings for dismissal at 2:45. Then come the extra curricular activities.

ORACLE ART STAFF E. LaForte, M. Salvati, B. Pitts, G. Abrams, D. Losi,
D. Borden, A. LiPome, L. Glassner

More than 800 students out of fewer than 1000 in the school bought THE LAFAYETTE ORACLE during the first week in September. Therefore the staff, comprised largely of seniors, this year had only two departments, the art staff and the literary staff.

The literary staff with Miss Croll, adviser, began planning this ORACLE and selecting its theme, Moments to Remember, last spring. Beginning in September they worked sixth hour every day and often after school, striving to present to the school a new yearbook which would meet the standards set in previous years. Fully aware of the deadline of February 15, when the book was to be delivered to the William J. Keller Company to be printed, the staff assigned quotations, tracked down student schedules to make picture appointments, made out innumerable cards of many colors to summon students for pictures, turned musicians to write lyrics for the theme, wrote text, typed, edited, retyped, glued, checked names with the files, and kept records of the current

CREATING ART WORK

Angela LiPome and her art staff, under the guidance of Mr. Slate, were busy each sixth hour. After many suggestions were made, the room was filled with sounds of people sketching. The captivating figures of Dennis Borden and Angela LiPome were chosen for the section pages. The drawings for all the pages were made by many people and the staff itself selected the ones to be developed. Lester Glassner accomplished the job, filled with optical illusions, of copying the music. Elio LaForte and Angela created the decorative clock faces. Dianne Losi and Dennis produced the hour glasses. The cover, selected from among the staff's several dozen sketches, was drawn by Lester. Mr. Slate guided the students in planning the book and was always available for measuring, cutting pictures and consultation.

In January the art staff invited the literary staff to see the completed drawings. Many laughed at the small figures, especially those that suggest counselor appointments and a small boy out distancing a long legged runner.

activities in an attempt to bring to the school a living record of the outstanding moments of the year.

Behind the scenes Edgar Buseck and Michael Cianciosi printed tickets; Miss Reif collected the money for the pictures taken by Mr. Fremy. Before the pictures could be taken, a light background had to be provided. The staff was rescued from this plight when Miss Kingdon of the Studio Theatre lent a light curtain, but, since it came in two long pieces and one short, care had to be taken to place tall boys so that the short part didn't show. The photography side of the book was completed when Mr. Svensson accomplished the delicate task of mounting senior, junior, and sophomore pictures.

The 1956 blue ribbon and the Western New York Interscholastic Press Association Trophy, awarded for the 1949, 1954, and 1955 yearbooks, reminded the staffs of the high standard to be equaled.

COLLECTING TROPHIES

Carol Northrup, LaVada Wright, Dawn Smith, Patricia Meredith, Betty Pitts, Cynthia Lawson, and Miss Croll spent an interesting and exciting day at the Western New York Interscholastic Press Association Convention December 15, at Burgard Vocational High School. Representatives from high schools throughout Western New York heard two talks on yearbook planning which gave them many new ideas. They were invited to see the press rooms and various devices were explained. This was followed by the awards to the yearbooks. The day was complete when Lafayette representatives discovered that the 1956 ORACLE was awarded the blue ribbon for second place out of 19 books submitted, that cost between $2100 and $3000.

In June 1956 Pat Meredith, Marcia Bradley, Faith Noble, Laura LaMarca, Lawrence Sanchez, Elio LaForte, Bob McGarry and Miss Croll went to Silver Creek where Emmie Max accepted the Western New York Interscholastic Press Association Cup, which became Lafayette's permanently.

THEY ENGAGE IN FRIENDLY PERSUASION

Forty-six students, the majority freshmen, appeared when the debaters were first called together in December. The group formed an exceptionally young debate squad. Even the final team had a majority of underclass debaters.

April 12, Lafayette's affirmative team debated Kensington at Kensington High School; Lafayette's negative team remained at home to meet South Park. The proposition was Resolved: that the federal government should subsidize scholarships for qualified students. The debaters did extensive reference work in the Buffalo and Erie County Library to increase their knowledge on a question, important to taxpayers and especially to students.

THEY COVER ALL ANGLES FROM ALL SIDES

After Dawn Smith inquired opinions on "What do you think of assigned lockers?" and "What coming event are you looking forward to?"; after Angelo Palamuso snapped pictures with great flashes of light; in fact after everyone did his task, the first TRIANGLE came out before Thanksgiving to begin a new year of keeping students "posted." Reporters sought up-to-the minute information of all activities. Under Nancy MacLeod's and Pat Meredith's direction, they typed activities in Room 403, made stencils, stapled sheets, and delivered the paper to homerooms for distribution. THE TRIANGLE cost 10 cents a copy.

THEY DIRECTED

The purpose of the Student Council is to encourage students to participate in democratic procedure, aid in the development of student pride, promote and maintain high standards of moral control, promote good student-faculty relationships, stimulate genuine scholarship, assist in the orientation of new students, charter new school organizations.

In September, a freshman orientation program was presented. Members spoke to the "bewildered" freshmen on various topics to acquaint them with Lafayette. This year the council had a "new look" with meetings after school twice a month and refreshments. At one meeting Mr. Pat Gismondi introduced a safety organization to teach boys and girls the habits of safe living, safe playing, safe working. At the Hallowe'en dance in the main cafeteria, the council served free refreshments. Frank and Jerry looked pleased when they won the apple dunking contest; they received prizes, a sucker and a toy lizard in assembly. November 2, Jerry Evarts of the COURIER EXPRESS and Bob Wells, who brought the Kossil Sisters, were honored guests at the Student Council Assembly. Don, Pat, Chuck, Carol, and Bob told what the council had accomplished and what it proposed in the future. They sponsored the Turkey Hop and the Christmas dance. Practically everyone bought purple Lafayette banners with the Lafayette seal. A skating party and the Sweetheart Swing were held in February.

In addition to Lafayette projects, the Council sent representatives to the Inter-High Student Council, which met once a month in different schools to discuss problems and to bring about better relations with all the schools. Dr. Rentz supervised the council.

The council promoted the monitor system throughout the school. Roy Langenbach appointed boys and girls to check on students in the halls and to promote neatness and good behavior in the cafeteria.

The monitors in Dr. Hayes' office were always ready to assist. Two different monitors each hour ran errands, did clerical work, and telephoned the absentees. They saved Dr. Hayes time and trouble by getting the students he wished to see. The monitors kept a list of names of the students who cut classes, and, the next morning, sent for them to attend the "Breakfast Club."

The library monitors helped Mrs. Hawkins, checking the names on the register and then taking the slips to the study hall teachers every hour. They also checked out books and collected fines.

The office monitors answered calls at the switchboard, took messages to the rooms, checked attendance records, sent postcards to absentees, and helped Mr. Axlerod and Dr. Hayes.

The cafeteria workers assisted in the cafeteria by working at the cash register, selling milk, candy, and ice cream.

Monitors accepted responsibility to help make Lafayette a well run school. They gave many hours and much effort to this project.

From the band, Mr. Scamacca selected a few people to play in the school dance band. At the Turkey Hop and Hop and Holly Dance, they kept the people moving by playing bunny hops, mambos, rhumbas and jitterbugs including "Canadian Sunset" and "Night Train."

MOMENTS OF MUSIC, MUSIC, MUSIC

The bands played, the glee club and chorus sang and Lafayette students proved again their musical ability. The band although small, played solid and strong. Before each assembly, they tuned up with scales and then played marches. They played on parents' night and for half an hour before the Christmas program Tuesday, December 18.

The chorus tried to teach students to work together by singing together. Through hard work and good arrangements, Mr. Scamacca made a fine singing group.

The chorus made their first public appearance in the Thanksgiving program, singing "Prayer of Thanksgiving," "Bless This House," "Now the Day Is Over," and "You'll Never Walk Alone" in two and three part harmony. In the Christmas program, they gave an excellent performance, singing "Joy to the World," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "O Little Town of Bethlehem" a capella.

LEARNING OR SERVING FOR PLEASURE

The purpose of the Lafayette Honor Society is to provide an opportunity for honor students to exchange ideas and gain new ones. It furnishes its members with a broader and more inclusive knowledge, not contained in the regular school course.

The society, newly formed this year, meets the second Wednesday of each month. Miss Gilray and Miss MacKenzie are the faculty advisers. Members are those students who were on the Lafayette honor roll the previous year. In January freshmen who were on the semester honor roll were also admitted.

At the first meeting, held in November, Bob Cipriano, Yvonne Block, Carol Todor, Carlin Munn led a successful panel on the growing Middle East problem. Chris Keuker was successful in getting nearly everyone into the discussion that followed.

In December a small group visited the Albright Art Gallery to learn about different styles of art.

At the January meeting, boys, led by Roy Langenbach and Chris Keuker, challenged the girls, led by Yvonne Block and Janis Dobbins, in a debate on the topic "Should eighteen year olds vote?"

During the second semester the Lafayette Honor Society devoted one meeting to the appreciation of fine music, listening to recordings of classical and semi classical compositions brought by members. Prominent speakers also addressed the group.

Serving others is the purpose of the Junior Red Cross. Furthermore the group tries to give moments of pleasure and enjoyment along with their service projects. On November 16, the Junior Red Cross presented an assembly at which Lawrence Edelman, a Bennett student and speaker from the main council speakers' bureau, explained the accomplishments of the organization. Lafayette officers made an appeal for donations for the annual Junior Red Cross drive. Lafayette students contributed $57.08.

The group engaged in many projects. For those children who spent Christmas in hospitals, the members made scrapbooks, place mats and tray favors. They sent overseas gift boxes containing sewing kits, marbles, pencils, pads, balls, and other little games. Sandra Falletta was in charge of instructing and making animals from wash cloths. These were sent to children in orphanages and refugee centers. A few members volunteered each week to work at the Red Cross Center on Delaware Avenue, where they labeled and attached tubes on blood bottles.

The Junior Red Cross, made up of two students from each homeroom, met once a month with Miss Tehan as faculty adviser. Lafayette also had two representatives, Sandra Falletta and Philip Palumbo, on the Main Junior Red Cross Council which includes people from schools of Erie County. In connection with this, Sandra and Phil took a training course in Junior Red Cross last summer at the University of Buffalo.

The purpose of the conference was to discuss the personal meaning of "freedom, opportunity, and responsibility." There were six hundred girls at the conference, some from as far away as Long Beach, California and Shreveport, Louisiana.

The Lafayette Girls' Hi-Y meetings included an interesting tour of the campus of the University of Buffalo, a demonstration given by a beauty counselor on the techniques and correct use of makeup, a visit to a children's ward of a hospital on Hallowe'en

Among their projects were a discussion on the topic "going steady," a social meeting with another Hi-Y, and a tour of the WGR TV television studio. They collected donations for the National Y's camp improvement and other Y

EXPERTS ON NEWS

The Headliners met each Tuesday and Thursday sixth hour in Room 215 to discuss current events. Mr. Cameron Byrd, practice teacher from the University of Buffalo, was the leader.

Students gained information on important current happenings from NEWSWEEK, TIME, THE AMERICAN OB-SERVER, or a local paper. A student presented an interesting topic which was then discussed.

WIZARDS WITH REELS AND SLIDES

The members of the projection crew helped make school work more pleasant. These students ran the movie projector and flashed slides in assemblies and in Room 113.

Under Miss Stall, the group received instructions on the proper care and handling of the projectors. She also made sure the machines were in good working order and oft times she was called out of class to repair untimely breaks in the film. Early in the year

Mr. Nicol, head of the visual aid department, came to Lafayette to give a special demonstration. He first showed two short films, one on the care and upkeep of movie projectors, the other on the loading and running of a film. Then each member was given a practice reel and allowed to load and run the film projector himself. This enabled everyone to perfect his technique.

CHECK THAT KING

Five or six boards were played and maybe 16 or 18 people kibitzed each Thursday and Friday when the chess club gathered in Room 113.

In the elimination which Mr. Mayer helped the members plan, Chris Keuker, Julius DiPaolo, and Dan Hochvert ran high. Eddie Oswald and Sam Perla proved themselves exceptional freshmen players. All worked to avoid a stalemate, the loss of his queen, or a play that checked his king. Mr. Mayer joined the players or instructed them by illustrating a variety of situations. Mr. Axlerod continued his interest in chess and chess players, as he showed by visiting the activities.

The top 5 players gave exhibition games with Fallon, Canisius, and Tech.

SPEAK AND LEARN

Patricia Magavero and Thomas Evege were prize speakers at Lafayette during the first semester.

In the girls' declamation contest, Patricia was the winner at Lafayette and placed third in the city finals with her selection "The Wonderful Word" by Harding W. Gaylord. At Lafayette Sandra Yates was second and Betty Tobias third.

Thomas Evege won the voice of democracy contest at Lafayette with his original speech, "I Speak for Democracy." He defeated representatives of all other public high schools to come in second in the city finals.

Public speaking attracted one of the most enthusiastic groups of students engaged in extra curricular activity. The boys and girls who participated in contests often came before 8 A.M. to work under the direction of Miss Wechter. These contests gave the individuals a chance to earn honor for themselves and their school but more important to gain experience and poise in speaking before a large audience.

The voice of democracy, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Knights of Pythias, the American Legion, the handicapped and the boys' oratorical contests required each entry to write his own speech and deliver it from memory. For the brotherhood and girls' declamation contests, the contestant was required to memorize and give effectively the work of some author.

Thomas Evege, Edward Nikiel, Sal Territo, and Patricia Magavero participated in WBEN's High School Forum of the Air, discussing teenage extra curricular activities.

REPRESENT CEYLON

The Junior Council on World Affairs met twice a month with Miss Stall to discuss current world problems. Through these meetings the members hoped to stimulate a more thorough understanding of world problems. The Suez crisis, the riots in Hungary and Poland, and the reshuffling of the English government were among the topics brought up. In January they began to prepare for the Model General Assembly, held in April at State Teachers' College. Lafayette, representing Ceylon, had some difficulty in finding material. Larry Sanchez wrote to Ceylon's delegate to the United Nations. The whole group spent one day at the Grosvenor Library, searching for facts about Ceylon activity in the U.N.

With carols and capers, ingenuity and hard work, Lafayette celebrated Christmas, Tuesday December 18.

Here we see the student committee Ed Hile, Sally Concardi, Cynthia Lawson, Ethel MacDonald, and Dianne Losi conferring with Mr. Hayes, production supervisor, on last minute arrangements. Dianne Losi, Ed Hile, Barbara Rubino, and Angela LiPome painted from 7:15 A.M. and until 5 P.M. daily to produce a glittering winter scene and colorful toy store as background for various acts. Sally Concardi, student director, worked for weeks on choreography with group performers. Cynthia Lawson transposed music and practiced endlessly during free periods to provide smooth accompaniment in keys comfortable for the singers. Ethel MacDonald, in an aqua chiffon dress, worried at rehearsal and presided charmingly. Even with this extensive effort, the performance could not have been except for Mr. Hayes. He it was who sat through hours and hours of auditions, listened to acts until Carols and Capers must have gone round and round in his head; but even so he was mainly smiling and able to put confidence into scared performers. These combined efforts resulted in a delightful program.

The Seven Dwarfs, Amelia LaPaglia, Rita Polizzi, Camille Martino, Stephanie DiBona, Evelyn DeCollibus, Alice D'Auria, Marie Sperraza and Snow White, Pat Meredith, stepped forward to demonstrate with gay song and dance what fun it is to "Whistle While You Work."

GAY CAROLS AND CAPERS

Aram Carapetyan, introducing the Toyland Scene, played "Toyland." Carolyn Monteforte sang "Silver Bells" after Stella DiPaolo touched her with a magic wand. Our wind-up doll, Carol Kennedy, sang "Deck the Halls." Carole Reiman helped accompany. Pat Magavero began the program, giving "The Littlest Angel."

The Five Belles, Dawn Smith, Marie Mogavero, Karin Kolz, Nancy MacLeod, and Sheila Lyons, laughed with Santa Claus, George Murray, while they told him who they wanted "Home for the Holidays." Who knew that Santa was so well padded that he couldn't sit down to listen to their pleadings?

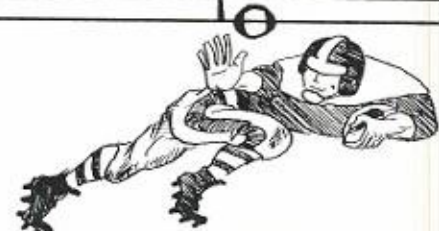

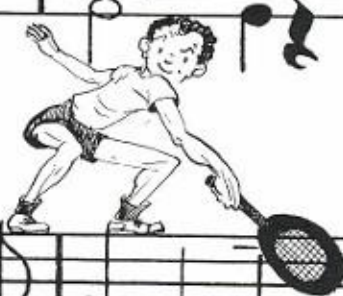

After a marvelous "March of the Toy Soldiers," Donna Carey, Sue Sage, Julie Ellis, Pat Pietrzak, Jackie Crittsinger, Carol Todoro, Daryl Dobrindt, Diane Dixon, and Sue Saunderson returned once more to stiff, unyielding figures in the toy store.

Roger Strothers, Rosalie Pellittieri and Grace Prime, vocal soloists, admire here the colorful costumes that Miss Dougherty procured for the three kings, Paul Caito, Leo Fraschetti, and Gentre Garmon.

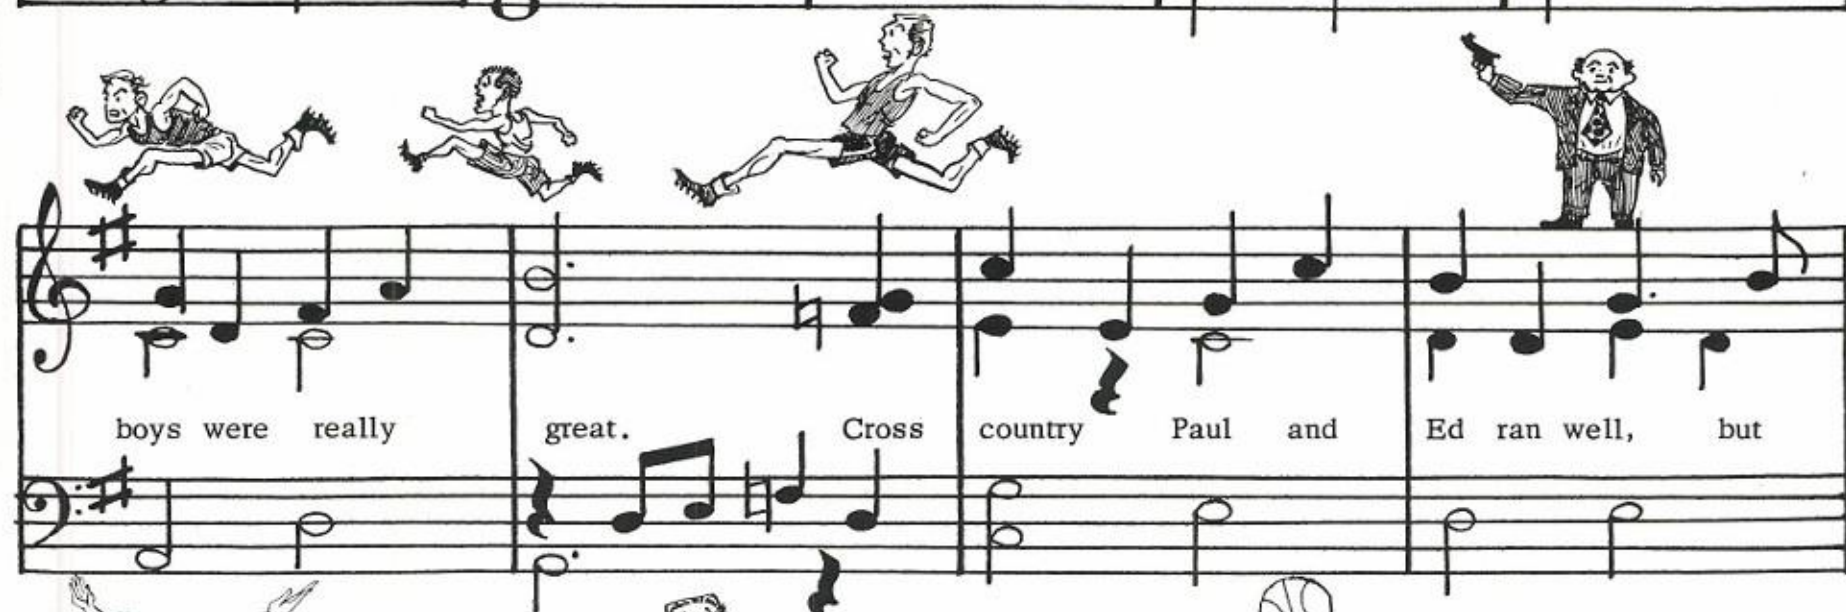

The chorus, under the exacting direction of Mr. Scamacca, brought a more serious note to the entertainment with their delightful harmonizing of favorite Christmas carols.

An attentive audience indicated great approval of this happy expression of Christmas spirit.

The 1957 football team was an unusually light as well as new team. Despite these weaknesses, they practiced faithfully and went on to the field with spirit and determination.

September 22	LAFAYETTE	SOUTH PARK

Although the violets made no touchdowns in their first game, they made a good showing and were far from inactive. The game did not lack in spectacle. Ben Marando picked up 70 yards in 9 trips and completed 3 passes for 47 yards. Agility and fast movement were employed to hold the Sparks back through the first three quarters. They made no score until the final ten minutes. Several attempts by South Park were blocked by quick thinking Lafayette boys. At the final gun, although Lafayette had no score about which to brag, everyone was proud of the team's good sportsmanship and fighting spirit.

October 6	LAFAYETTE	EAST

This game proved something to the students. Although the Violets didn't win, they were not going to give up. They were a team that could take a loss as if it were just a part of the game. They tried their best and no school could ask more of its athletes. There would be other moments; other games, other seasons.

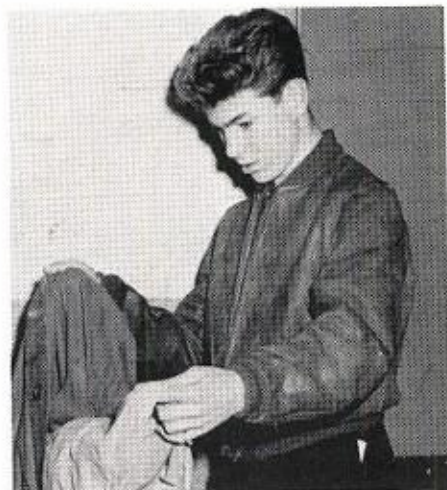

Our statistics were as follows: 50 yards gained by passing, 33 yards by rushing, and a total of 5 first downs.

new enthusiasm came alive as Frank LaMarca and Bill Yeates scored the first 2 touchdowns of the season. Surprisingly, LaMarca was one of the lightest members of the team. The touchdowns were won on a 28 yard pass from Don Silmon and an 18 yard throw by Ben Marando.

October 20	LAFAYETTE	RIVERSIDE
	7	12

Bill Yeates scored again. He went over with a 37 yard pass from Roy Carlisi. The extra point brought Lafayette's tally to 7. They were doing better and some of the players like Bill Yeates, Jim Peasland, Alonzo Barnes, and Ben Marando were proving their worth.

October 27	LAFAYETTE	MC KINLEY
	7	20

In the third quarter the violets again showed their stuff. Jim Peasland smashed through McKinley's tight line and scored the touchdown. On a run Alonzo Barnes made the extra point. Hopes were high for the last game of the 1957 season.

November 10	LAFAYETTE	EMERSON
	20	7

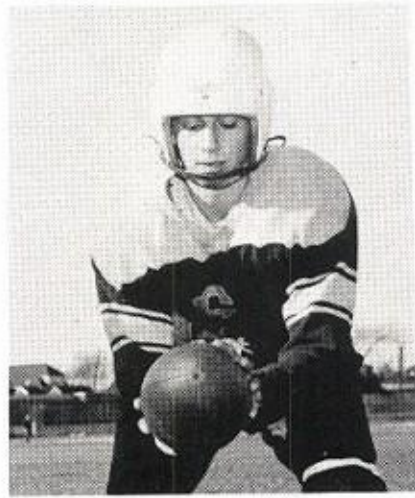

It was the last chance and tension was great. Lafayette rooters weren't disappointed. Ben Marando proved his passing accurate. He delivered 2 touchdown passes, one to Yeates and one to LaMarca. In the second quarter Dennis Collins smashed over for a 26 yard run and a third touchdown. The entire school cheered this victory and the violets proved they could win.

500 POINT "L" WINNERS J. Bandinelli, M. MacLeod, S. Fetes, M. Vigneri, L. Wright, C. Lawson, S. Harley, M. Mogavero, G. Genco, B. Mason, B. DeMarço

ON TO A GOLD 500

Twelve seniors earned a gold "L" this year; one received the Alice T. Quirk trophy, awarded annually in memory of a former physical education instructor. The trophy represents leadership, sportsmanship, and character.

The girls recalled when, as bewildered freshmen, they learned about the athletic program directed by Miss Riegel, Mrs. Marquis, and Mrs. Baker. Again this year freshmen started earning points for the four inch 150 point "L" by playing volleyball. At the end of the season the violets won two of three games.

In their second year a smaller number participated in two sports to earn a 300 point "L." As juniors they felt relieved to have only 100 points to earn; yet some earned as many as 200. They remember especially their basketball activities. This year's basketball players had a final battle of speed and accuracy when the violets beat the whites, 15 to 9. The girls laugh about how, after the long climb to the fourth floor gymnasium, they decided that there were too many holes in their badminton racket, there was glue on the tenoff of the shuffleboard court, and the ping pong ball had jumping beans in it. They recall how they raced up and down the pool, timed and advised by Mrs. Baker, and how they tried to hit the balls into the balcony in softball so that the girls could make home runs. In 1957 underclass girls had like experiences.

ROW TWO: D. Dixon, J. Dobbins, M. Zuffoletto, J. Ivey

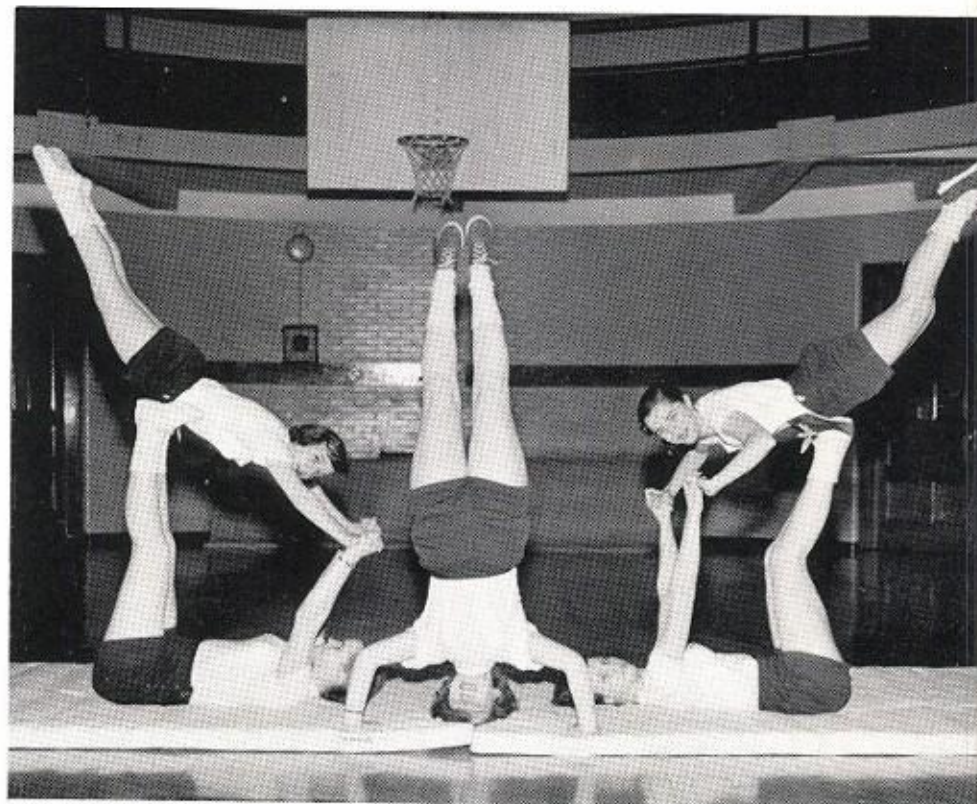

C. Doyle, D. Murray, E. Hill, P. Moran, M. Zimmerman demonstrate their skill on the ropes. As members of the Leaders' Club, they received more advanced training in gymnastics so that they could assist their teachers in class.

EAGER GIRL ATHLETES

S. Falletta, C. Todoro, S. Book, S. Watson, watch as J. Hanner does a birdsnest. Besides doing these exercises, some girls also refereed after school badminton tournaments. On January 5, six girls from the club attended a Sports Day at the University of Buffalo.

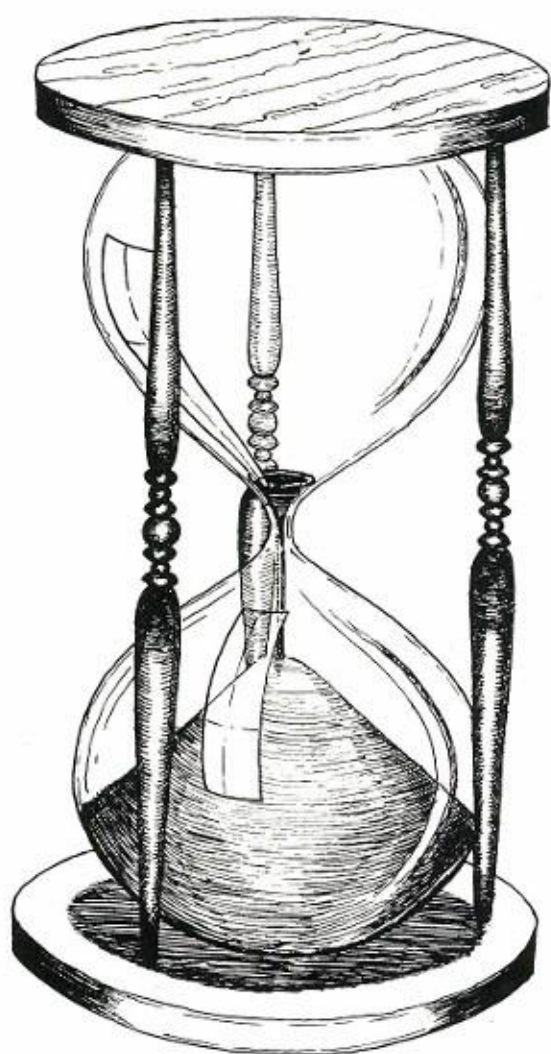

While L. Castelluccio, P. Magavero, J. Paul and F. Saleh assist, P. Walker and P. Moran experience a topsy turvy view of the lower gym. These girls through participation in the club's activities improved their physical co-ordination besides developing leadership qualities.

VIOLET VOLLEYBALL TEAM ROW ONE: C. Doyle, R. Polizzi, J. Spiers, S. Fischer, H. Krusen, S. Wolf, N. Lagattuta, E. LiPome (captain), S. McConnell, M. Koch, S. Walker, M. Harrington, M. Smith, A. Lyons, L. Scropo
